FOREIGN SERVICE INSTITUTE
WASHINGTON

April 18, 1963

Dear Mr. Baird: STATINTL

On April 2, 1963, [REDACTED] kindly lectured before my course on "Eastern Europe and the U.S.S.R." on "The Geography of East-Central Europe and its Significance". Before coming to lecture, he had paid us the courtesy of coming here to discuss his talk.

It was with great satisfaction that my students and I listened to him. He brought some excellent view-graphs indicating the mixture of peoples in this area, as well as a bibliography for further study. With his background as a historian as well as that of a geographer his contribution to the success of the course was substantial. My only hope is that he enjoyed the experience as much as we did. Kindly convey to him the Institute's appreciation and that of myself.

Sincerely yours,

Gustavus Tuckerman
Course Chairman
